THE RELIANCE WINS AGAIN

CAPTURES ANOTHER RACE FROM LIPTON'S BOAT

Second Race Won by the Narrow Margin of One Minute and Nineteen Seconds—Will Contest Again Thursday.

New York, Aug. 25.—In a glorious sailing breeze over a triangular course, ten miles to leg, the Reliance again today showed her heels to Lipton's challenger, taking the second race of the narrow margin of one minute and nineteen seconds. It was as pretty and hard fought a contest as has ever been sailed of Sandy Hook and had the wind not fallen during the last ten minutes the record for the course, three hours, twelve minutes and fifteen seconds made by the Columbia two years ago, would have been broken. As it was the Reliance sailed within two minutes and twenty-nine seconds of the record, which speaks wonders for her speed in the wind that was blowing.

The Reliance's victory, narrow as it was, would have been even smaller had not Captain Wringle bungled the start, sending his craft over the line nineteen seconds after the last gun and handicapping her to that extent. At every point of sailing the defender's superiority was demonstrated. She gained one minute and fifty-one seconds in windward work and forty seconds on the run to the second mark, and forty-five seconds on the close reach for home. Based upon the magnificent showing she has made in the two races already sailed, it is the belief of many experts the cup is safe and it will take something better than Piff's great latest creation to out run it.

An excursion fleet, like a floating city built upon the floor of the ocean, lined up rail to rail in a great semi-circle to witness the start. Spectators watched the cocking start with eager interest. To the uninitiated it was hair-raising to see what close company the giant singlestickers kept. It seemed momentarily as if the spurs would lash as they pulled and hauled together. Jibbing and putting about with wonderful ease and grace, it was when they bounded across the line it was seen the American skipper had out-generaled his rival and secured the weather gauge. Not only was the challenger's captain defeated in effort to secure windward, but actually failed to cross in time to save a handicap, which is almost an unardonable sin in a cup contest. Barr never relinquished his advantage.

As the clean timed racers got farther out the weight of the wind steadily increased. Both boats, with every stitch of canvas set, smashed into the sea, heeling down in puffs and under pressure of thousands of yards of canvas until their lee rails were awash with the foaming brine. Their crews, piled up to the weather, were repeatedly deluged with showers of spray sent aloft by the sparkling bows. The Reliance gained slowly but surely, increasing the width of the stretch of water between her and the challenger. The yachts turned the second mark at a terrific pace. The Reliance had sailed the leg of ten miles in fifty-six minutes and twenty seconds. The last leg was also covered at roaring speed. The Reliance was still increasing her lead. The guide boat, sent ahead to show the course, was too slow, although everything aboard her was wide open, and the Reliance passed her before the line was reached.

All ocean-going tugs and many of the steam yachts were left astern in the mad race. Just before the finish the wind died down, but the Reliance went across the line in ample time to win, having covered the ten miles in fifty-seven minutes and forty seconds.

THE RACE.

When the yachts reached the starting line shortly after 10 o'clock the wind was blowing about four knots. The course was a triangular one, ten miles to a leg—first leg south, second northeast, east by east, half east; third, northwest by west, half west. Before the starting gun was fired the wind began rising. In the preliminary jockeying the Reliance got a windward position, blanketing the Shamrock, and clung to it through various maneuvers until the warning gun was fired, when Wringle got clear of the Reliance. At the sound of the gun the Shamrock bore off to leeward and away from the Reliance. Barr crossed the line thirty-six seconds behind the gun. The Shamrock kept away from the line almost until the handicap, when it tacked and crossed it handicapped by nineteen seconds, for which no allowance was made to her. The nineteen seconds were a dead loss.

Once fairly away Captain Wringle resumed his tactics of the previous race, gave his boat a good rap full and sailed through the Reliance's lee and got under her lee bow, while Barr pinched the Reliance close into the wind and began to cover the distance to the windward mark. Wringle's maneuver gave him a field clear of interference and once satisfied the Reliance could not blanket his boat he flattened in his sheets and began to point closer to the wind. Barr, however, was nursing the Reliance up to windward. Half an hour after the start the gap between the two boats widened materially. The Reliance was pointing higher and Shamrock was fogging faster. They were half a mile apart when they tacked off and each at 11:42. The Reliance was first to go about. When both yachts were filled away it was clear the Reliance was gaining. The Shamrock was far astern and very little to windward of the Reliance's course. The wind was now blowing seven knots. Carrying a hard full the Shamrock was heeling prettily, moving through at a fast clip and making considerably more fuss under her bows than the American boat. Barr was pinching the Reliance into the wind until her little baby jib topsail fluttered. The race was being fought out on the same lines as the previous one. The Reliance sought to make her gain by out-pointing the British boat, while the latter endeavored to make up what she lost in pointing by footing faster with a rap full. At noon the wind had increased to ten knots and both yachts were in a straight course of the turning mark, not more than two miles distant. They were heeling hard and dragging their lee rails through a lather of surf and sending it spurting from under their bows in a fashion that indicated they were making at least twelve knots.

Though the Reliance had a lead of three minutes and fifteen seconds she still lacked six seconds of making up the time allowance and the difference of one minute and twenty-four seconds at the start. Officially the Shamrock was still six seconds ahead of the Yankee boat, but it was evident the latter had won the race, barring accidents. In a breeze varying from four to ten knots she had made good the allowance in the ten mile stretch to windward and there was every reason to believe that in reaching and running she would quickly overcome that official six seconds. Both captains broke out balloon jib topsails when they squared away for the second turn. The wind was so far aft that they quickly decided that instead of being a broad reach, as intended, the course to turn was a run. Spinnaker booms were guyed out and the great sails added to the tall reaches of canvas. The sails were taken in and with spinnaker booms guyed well forward the yachts ran away for the turn. The boats were heading off the coast a bit and they ran that way for half an hour, when the Reliance smothered her spinnaker and began to set her staysail. During the run she did not appear to have gained an inch, but immediately after taking her true course she began to draw away. Ten minutes after the Reliance the Shamrock also took in her spinnaker, set her staysail and headed for the mark. They made a second turn: Reliance 1:17:50; Shamrock, 1:21:45. The Reliance gained forty seconds in the run across from the first to second mark. She had overcome the time allowance, made good the differences at the start and established a margin to her credit of forty-four seconds.

The Reliance whirled about the mark, gazed over, trimmed in her sheets and romped away on a close reach toward the Sandy Hook lightship and the finish line. She was three-quarters of a mile away before the Shamrock rounded the mark. Both yachts were heeling before a twelve-knot wind and were sailing at least a mile an hour faster than the wind was blowing. The Reliance was heeled just enough to bring her overhangs to bear and give her the benefit of her great sailing length. A mile from the lightship the Reliance had gained so much upon the guide vessel coastwise that the latter sheeted off and gave the Reliance a clear course to the finish. As the wind softened the Reliance first set the baby jib topsail, which the Shamrock had been carrying since turning the second mark, and then exchanged it for the big reaching jib, the Shamrock promptly following suit. When the Reliance was a quarter of a mile from the finish the wind died away considerably, but the Shamrock came booming along carrying a splendid breeze and fast overhauling the leader.

It looked as though the British boat was going to get within her time limit, but the finish line was too close, and the Reliance skipped across it with one minute and nine seconds to spare. The Shamrock finished in a softening wind and both boats were taken in tow to Sanday oak. The official time: Reliance: Start, 11:00:38; finish, 2:15:30; elapsed time, 3:14:54; corrected time, 3:14:54. Shamrock III: Start, 11:02:00; finish, 2:20:10; elapsed time, 3:18:10; corrected time, 3:16:13. The next race will be sailed Thursday.

LIPTON PLEADED.

New York, Aug. 25.—After the race Lipton said: "You have all seen the results and the only thing I can say is that we did better to day than in the last race, which is so. My defeat at a little over one minute is an encouragement, for if we make as much progress in the next race as we did in this over the last, we will be abt ahead in the finish in the third race. I was more than pleased with the way my own boat was handled to day. It is hard to admit, but the best boat won. Perhaps with more wind at the finish the result might have been different, but I don't want to throw any cold water on the victor. It is hard to win every race in such a series and I hope our turn will come next."

Captain Barr said: "That's number two. Now we will get ready for the third." Lord Shaftesbury said: "We are licked. Reliance is jolly well the best boat." C. O. Iseling said: "I don't suppose anybody ever saw two boats better handled than those were to day. It would seem, however, the Reliance has proved her superiority in all kinds of weather and under all conditions."

GAMBLING HIS DOWNFALL

Havana Man Leaves Wife, Child ren and Home—J. L. Randles Has Disappeared, Short in Accounts.

Havana, Ill., Aug. 25.—It is seldom that the evil of gambling with its attendant sorrow and trouble comes to light, but last week the public of this city was startled by the sudden departure of J. L. Randles, the manager of the electric light system of Havana, which was soon learned and was caused, it is alleged, by the appropriation of funds of the Royal Circle lodge, of which he was treasurer. All had been lost by the mania of gambling and led on by the hopes of regaining the first loss, all had gone and the penitentiary stared him in the face. Nothing but flight was left for him and the wife and little children were the sacrifice. Friends will adjust the loss of the money.

The team became frightened and ran away, dragging him a considerable distance. He was conscious when picked up and remained so for twenty-four hours. He then grew worse and continued to sink. Clark was a veteran of the Mexican war and a man of considerably property.

Resignation was Accepted with Understanding Root Serve Until Jan. 1—Statement by the President.

Root will go out some time in January and Taft will assume the duties officially shortly afterward. The president also authorized publication of correspondence between him and Secretary Root concerning the latter's resignation.

Gen. Luke E. Wright, of Memphis, Tenn., will succeed Judge Taft as governor general of the Philippines when the latter becomes secretary of war next January. In succession to Elihu Root.

Wright is now a member of the Philippine commission and vice governor of the islands. He is a lifelong Democrat. Roosevelt spoke in terms of high praise of Wright's ability and fitness for the position of governor general. He entertains sincere regard for him both personally and officially. The president and Secretary Root both regard Wright as a man of proved executive ability, his services as member of the Philippine commission having been of a distinguished character. During Taft's extended sojourn in this country Wright was acting governor general and his conduct of the office was a source of congratulation to the administration. Wright is popular, not only with Americans in the Philippines, but also with Filipinos, who hold him only second in their admiration to Taft.

ANSWERS HILL.

Geneseo, N. Y., Aug. 25.—Governor Odell addressed the Pioneer's association of Livingston county to day. The governor after speaking of the present general industry turned his attention to that part of ormer Governor Hill's address last week at Olcott beach, in which Hill referred to "spectacularism." "Those who seek only personal ambition and political advancement," said Odell, "are too often led to public utterance which to be discordant breed content, that through the misery of others they may further their own selfish desires. That man, therefore, whose unrequited political ambition has caused him to look upon every man as his foe, whose character is so black that he is led through the circulation of malicious falsehoods and slanders to pull down others to his own level, is possessed of a disease more dangerous to society than homicidal insanity—more to be pitied than censured."

The minister in the letter referred to said his government was quite favorable to the original program of the Zionists, which can rely on its moral and material support when its practical measures tend to decrease the Jewish population of Russia. CITY A HEAP OF RUINS

TOWN OF KRUSHEVORENDED UNINHABITABLE

Turkish Authorities Refuse to Allow Bodies Buried and they are Gnawed by Dogs and Hogs—Story of the Massacre.

Monastir, European Turkey, Aug. 25.—The once beautiful city of Krushevo is a heap of ruins. Women and children are homeless, exposed to the weather and famine. The town is rendered uninhabitable by the odor of corpses, which are being gnawed by dogs and pigs. Turkish authorities refusing to allow them to be removed under pretext an inquest will be held.

Krushevo contained 2,000 houses and 10,000 inhabitants, mostly Vlaches, calling themselves Greeks. There were only 100 poor Bulgarian houses. The Vlaches are merchants who travel abroad on business, leaving their families in Krushevo. After making fortunes abroad they return to Krushevo, where they own fine houses, furniture of jewels. The actionian committee, in concert with Bulgarian bands, had been completing arrangements during several months with the view to occupying the town. Appeals of the inhabitants for protection were unheeded. Aug. 2, the day fixed for the Bulgarian attack on Krushevo, a number of Komitajis, secreting themselves in a church, sounded the alarm by ringing church bells. Simultaneously a band of 300 insurgents entered the town, discharging their rifles. The band first burned the residence of the mudur and massacred the garrison of Turkish soldiers and officers of the town. The following morning the Komitajis established a provincial government. They killed ten Christians, who they believed had betrayed their plans of attack. Notables of the town were forced to contribute $150,000 to the revolutionary fund.

Turks were informed of the capture of the town and sent three squadrons of cavalry, which were attacked enroute and compelled to retire with the loss of 100 killed. Aug. 13, Turks concentrated seven battalions and one battery on Krushevo. They offered to allow women and children to leave, but the komitajis declined the proposal and bombardment began. The komitajis quickly abandoned the town and escaped to neighboring forts where pursuit was impossible. The Turks entered the town, attacked the houses of Greek notable and ordered the inmates searched and stripped. They seized money and jewels and ravished women, those who resisted being killed. A Greek priest who sought to protect his daughter was killed. The girl's earrings were torn out and her hand chopped off to secure a bracelet. When the houses had been pillaged Turkish peasants loaded their horses with whatever the soldiers left and the residences were burned. The sack of Krushevo lasted three days, during which time women and children remained without food and shelter and at the mercy of soldiers and Bash Bazookas. Sofia, Aug. 25.—At Mahla 250 Bash Bazookas, entrenched in a stone tower, were attacked by revolutionists who dynamited the tower and killed all the inmates.

Virgen, Aug. 25.—After an unsuccessful attempt to quash a charge to forge the names looked out that George J. Walkington, a prominent and wealthy farmer of West Virgen, last Saturday. The check was for $500 and was offered to Moses Clayton, a well known stockman, at a discount of $200. Mr. Clayton became suspicious and took the check to his son, W. H. Clayton, who in turn consulted Attorney H. H. Cowen, who advised an interview with Mr. Walkington. Mr. Pattison confessed his guilt when brought before Mr. Walkington and Attorney Cowen and an effort was made to cause a withdrawal of the charge at the consent of Mr. Walkington and all evidence was destroyed by burning the forged check.

Remains From Her New Home

Mrs. Gertrude Richardson has received a letter from her friend, Mrs. M. J. Newell, who recently removed from Jacksonville to San Francisco. Mrs. Newell's friends will be interested in hearing from her. She says in part:

"I left Jacksonville, Mo., Thursday morning at 4 o'clock, arrived in San Francisco the following Monday at 3 a. m., and found the city a very different place. The streets were crowded all the way; had two engines from Ogden, Utah, and one broke down near Sacramento, so delayed us several hours. Little Ruth was sick two days, so we gave up the Salt Lake trip, but we saw the lake from the train."

"The scenery was so grand after we arrived in Denver. Before that it was rather dreary. In crossing the Sierra Nevada we had to go through forty-two miles of snow sheds, which are built to keep snow off the tracks. We got off for five minutes at the highest point, 7,000 feet. Snow was near enough to see, but a little higher than we were. We slept under blankets and comforts, but to day is more like a May day. I have worn my jacket every day and am trying not to get home sick. We think we will like our new home very much, but will have to get used to it, as things are so different. If we had just our Jacksonville friends here I should have nothing left to wish for. The air is so bracing and fresh. Mr. Newell feels fine and looks like he is gaining already."

"We have nicely furnished rooms and will occupy those until we succeed in finding a home that suits us, which we have not been able to do as yet. We can see the bay from our sitting room windows and watch the boats come in. We went to the beach, a distance of eight miles, and saw the Cliff house and seal rocks with seal crawling over them. We also visited Sutter park; it was so lovely, great beds of roses, but nothing to be plucked. We also visited Golden Gate park and it, too, is so beautiful. The museum was fine, but we did not have time to see it all. Concerts are given every Sunday afternoon at the grand music stand. Flowers grow in great quantities here; fuschias look like young trees and heliotrope grows in great bushes as high as the first story windows and you see fences covered with geraniums; they are very common and grow rank and wild. The conservatory of flowers at the park was simply grand, begonias having blooms as large around as a saucer dish; some were double. One room had them all around it in all colors too beautiful to describe."

"Cecel will start to school Monday and has to go three blocks. The M. E. church is near us. Following are some of the prices for eatables here: Lard, 13c lb.; peaches and pears, 5c doz.; eggs, 30 and 35c doz.; bread, five loaves 25c; milk, 10c qt.; butter, 1 1/2 lbs., 45c."

SOMETHING GOOD.

This paper can render no greater service to its many readers than to acquaint them with a really meritorious medicine. Ro-Go Tonic Laxative Syrup, advertised in these columns is a harmless substitute for Castor Oil, Paregoric and dangerous soothing drops, and is said to be the most pleasant and reliable medicine in use for the quick and certain cure for Constipation and Flatulency. It contains no opium, morphine or other narcotic and stupefying drugs. For children it aids nature in digesting and assimilating the food and induces healthy, natural sleep. Ro-Go Tonic Laxative Syrup is a certain cure for all stomach troubles; 25c 50c and $1 bottles. Sold by Leo P. Alcott, druggist.

MASON COUNTY TAX CASE.

Havana, Aug. 25.—A difficult question is being considered by the Fulton county board of review, which has been submitted to Attorney General Hamlin. The case is as follows:

J. W. Rhodes purchased the fee in 60 acres of land in Rebel township, paying $400. The contention being that the fee is not taxable. On the other hand, it is contended that Rhodes is the owner of the land and should pay his share of the expenses for the land. Rhodes is in value from year to year, during the life of Mrs. Rhodes. Rhodes has a life interest and absolute ownership until her death. The land is assessed at a value of nearly $1000. Mr. Rhodes was a resident of Havana until recent years, when he moved to Leavenworth.

DELIGHTFUL GATHERING.

Sunday last at the home of W. A. Lawley, southeast of the city, there was a delightful gathering of friends and relatives who came to pay their respects to the amiable host and hostess and enjoy a pleasant time. A large kettle of burgoo soup was a striking feature in the various attractions of the occasion, while a plentiful dinner, in which the soup played conspicuously, was heartily enjoyed. In the latter part of the afternoon lighter refreshments were served, ice cream and cake being especially abundant. About eighty guests were present and all enjoyed a very delightful time.

FIRE BELL CRACKED.

The fire bell, which has been in use for many years, was cracked yesterday in giving the alarm for the fire at Ethnie's store on West State street. Until a new bell is installed the whistle at the electric light plant will be used to alarm the public and call firemen.

AWNING BURNED.

The awning at the West State street confectionery of W. S. Ehnie & Bro. caught fire about 11 o'clock Tuesday morning and was entirely destroyed. Several persons who happened to be standing near laid hold of the awning and succeeded in pulling it down before any other damage was done aside from the burning of the Adams Express sign and badly scorching the coal sign of T. P. Lounsbury. How the fire originated is a mystery, as the flames broke out at the upper corner and burned rapidly. From all indications it would seem that the fire was started by some one lighting a lighted match or cigar under the awning, but the theory was also advanced that sparks from the miniature steam engine, which had gone puffing by several feet on the opposite side of the street, blew across the road and did damage. The fire department arrived in due time, but their services were not needed, although they broke the fire bell getting there. The entire theory as the cause of the fire is hardly probable, as the wind was blowing from a direction to carry sparks. The awning was burned as were the tasty decorations of corn cobs.

ILL GOTTEN SPECULATIVE GAINS.

A New Orleans paper says the men living in that city composing the cotton bull clique have cleared $3,750,000 on the spot cotton huddled by them. They bought at an average of 9 cents a pound and sold at an average of 12 cents. It is said that the same amount has been made on "future" deals up to the end of July. Commenting on this an editorial writer of the Chicago Tribune says: "That is the princely reward of a short but wearing campaign. Others will be tempted to try to do likewise. The members of the cotton clique are richer than they were. Who contributed the money? If the advance in the price of raw cotton engineered by them had been followed by an advance in the price of cotton goods the $7,500,000 would have come from the consumers of such goods. They are distributed all over the world and the money the New Orleans operators have taken in could be raised by an infinitesimal tax on each of them. The consumers will not pay the tax because the manufacturers have been unable to raise the price of their goods. The jobbers, believing that the advance in the price of cotton will be only transitory, have refused to load themselves down with finished products at an increased rate. "The manufacturers, having to choose between producing at a loss and closing down temporarily have largely adopted the latter alternative. American, English and German operatives have been thrown out of work. Their lost wages are a part of the money taken in by the cotton clique. The lost profits of manufacturers who are temporarily idle are another part. The manufacturers may be able to stand their losses without much discomfort. With most of the operatives it will be different. They will suffer acutely. "There are many who will admire and envy the New Orleans operators who have cleaned up $7,500,000 in a few months. There are others who, knowing whence the money came, will neither admire nor envy. They believe that gains whose acquisition involves the sufferings of helpless men and women are ill gotten gains and they have a feeling that such gains cannot be a blessing to those now rejoicing in their possession.

ROCKFORD'S GET-TOGETHER MEETING.

Moline Dispatch.—The Dispatch is not quite able to see why there should be a "get-together" meeting at Rockford. Ostensibly it is to make some sort of a combination by which the counties in the northern part of the state will stand together for the nomination of a particular candidate. The counties, or some of them, want something, and that man or these counties propose to hold a meeting with a view of getting the support of all the counties for some unnamed man who wants an office.

Now it is perfectly proper for any of these counties to bring forth its favorite son for any office it pleases, and it is perfectly proper for any man in any county to aspire to any office within the gift of the people. But suppose this thing of combining counties in the different parts of the state begins to spread. It is already understood that if a man from any congressional district is a candidate for office, all the counties of that district will be expected to support him. There are relations in this district that seem to make this necessary. But if two or three or more districts are to combine, there will soon be a demand for other combinations. In the present proposed combination there are three districts. If the state should divide in that way there would be at least seven combinations. If all these should select different offices, it would be a nice thing. But, unfortunately, there are not enough first class offices to go around, even should there be no division of the combinations as to the counties and individuals in each combination of counties that should have the offices.

If the meeting at Rockford is to be a meeting to advance the interests of the Republican party, there is no reason why every Republican in the state should not endorse it. But if it is to be a meeting of a faction for the sole purpose of advancing the interests of a particular candidate, the fewer people who attend the better it will be for the party.

And it is just as likely to hurt the man who is endorsed by it as to help him. It is an easy thing for a man of fair popularity to get a few men from each county to attend a meeting of this kind and endorse him for any office he may want, and by lapsing over one district, might take part in three or four of these meetings and so help make a number of candidates. The recommendations of such a gathering would have no force, whatever, and they might be a positive injury to the man they endorsed. They would certainly have the ALARM OF FIRE.

The fire department was called to the residence of Fred Batz at the corner of East North and Yates streets yesterday morning at about 5 o'clock by an alarm of fire. After a little quick work on the part of the department the flames were subdued, but not before they had done considerable damage.

The cause of the fire is not known. It apparently originated in the attic over the kitchen, and was not noticed until Mrs. Batz awoke to find the roof a mass of flames. The alarm was turned in by a neighbor.

THE MIMIC WAR.

Portland, Me., Aug. 26.—Warships attempted to enter the harbor about midnight, but were brought into view by the searchlights. The land batteries opened fire and a vessel was theoretically sunk. At 1:15 Wednesday morning a battleship came into range and the forts again opened fire. The vessel replied. At 1:35 the harbor near Fort Preble, the acknowledged key, was filled with launches carrying landing parties. General quarters were sounded and troops at the fort began firing force. Firing from all forts soon became general, but at 1:45 all ceased except Fort Leavitt. A cutter and launch from the ships were captured by the land forces at Fort Preble shortly after 1:40.

At 2 o'clock Wednesday morning there was a center attack at Fort Preble, which was answered by similar forces who were fought back by the land parties, resulting in the capture of the point. Cannonading continued at 2:20.

AT CAMP LINCOLN

Military Wedding Promised for This Week—Thursday is Governor's Day.

Springfield, Aug. 25.—Camp Lincoln had its first military ball during the encampment of the militia this year, and it plans carry, the Fourth regiment will be called up to participate in a military wedding this week. A little romance lead up to the affair.

During his sermon to the regiment last Sunday, Chaplain Shepherd, of Alton, newly appointed, announced that his services henceforth would be at the disposal of the regiment—even down to the lowest ranking private. As the chaplain was leaving the improvised pulpit at the close of the service, he was greeted by Ernest Harkness, who said seriously, "Chaplain, I intend to hold you to your statement." Chaplain Shepherd believed that Harkness was merely resorting to dry humor.

To day, Harkness, who resides in Decatur and plays a basso horn in the Goodman band which is encamped with the regiment, was given a leave of absence for two days by the band director on condition that his marriage ceremony be performed in camp next Thursday evening. The name of the bride is withheld by Harkness, but he admits that she is a well known young woman of Monticello, Ill.

Thursday is Governor's day in the reservation and a large crowd will witness the ceremony which will be performed at 8 p. m. in the band pavilion by Chaplain Shepherd. The wedding march will be played by the band.

The men of Colonel Tanner's command are battling well with the heat at camp, and not a patient has been confined to the hospital. Officers of the regiment, accompanied by the band, will visit Governor Yates at the executive mansion to morrow evening and a complimentary concert will be played on the mansion campus.

RUSSIA'S SUPPORT.

New York, Aug. 25.—The Jewish News publishes a dispatch from Basel, Switzerland, in which it is stated that during the discussion regarding Dr. Herzl's statement that the Russian government would hereafter lighten the burden of Jews and favor Zionism and would allow it to be propagated, Herzl was asked for his authority for such a statement. Herzl produced a letter signed by Von Plehwe, Russian minister of the interior, in which it is stated that so long as Zionism is confined to a desire to create an independent state in Palestine Russia was favorable, but as soon as this is replaced by a propaganda for "national concentration" Jews in the Russian government could not tolerate the new departure.
If Zionism returns to the original program, Von Plehwe says, it can count on Russian moral and national support.

SECOND DAY OF CORN CARNIVAL

THOUSANDS IN ATTENDANCE TUESDAY NIGHT.

Knights of Khorassan Had Parade—Merchants Have Decorated Well—The Prizes for Horse Show.

Tuesday of street fair week was a grand success. The crowd in the day time was not large, but in the evening all records were broken. Before sundown, from all directions long lines of people could be seen heading for Central park and before the 10 O. K. K. parade started East and West State streets were practically blocked inside of the business section.

The parade moved promptly and was a grand galaxy of grandeur. The marchers, 200 or more, were in gala attire and fantastic garb, characteristic of the Arabs of the desert with enough of the burlesque thrown in to make a decidedly interesting and amusing spectacle. As for noise, Bedlam was outdone and the confusion at the Tower of Babel left far in the distance. It was a gorgeous array and no mistake. Red fire and Roman candles gave brilliancy to the scene and the individual gyrations of the marchers furnished no end of fun for the crowd.

J. W. Woods, J. Z. Scott and Col. John R. Robertson acted as marshals and led the parade. They rode gallant steeds, richly caparisoned. J. G. Reynolds and J. E. Claus with silk tiled heads headed the marchers and were the only dignified persons in line. A farmer drum corps followed, composed of Green Lattrell, E. E. Crabtree, T. M. Tomlinson and S. L. Perry snare drums, with Tom Russell beating the bass in true campaign style. "Billy" Benson was a show in himself. He was not driving Gold-seeker this time, however, but was piloting a burro, dressed in the costume of a clown. Had he been entered in the slow race he undoubtedly would have captured the prize.

The wild animals from the "Zoo" led by their trainers were conspicuous and the brute creation was certainly the best behaved of the lot.

Jeffries' Concert band was next in line and they were followed by the Wild West aggregation, who gave a good account of themselves in the way of noise. The members of the order in double file came next and many were the amusing costumes worn. Frank Plouer, clad in a morning wrapper and "Billy" Anderson in a mother Hubbard attracted a great deal of attention and numerous others came in for favorable notice. The Markee band of Quincy brought up the rear and played stirring tunes. The line of march was followed as advertised and every step of the way it was a success and the end sought was certainly attained, as the crowd was the largest seen on the streets in many a day. After the parade the crowd joined in a grand promenade around the square and through the park, viewing the magnificent window decorations of the merchants. Bushes of confetti were scattered broadcast and no quarter was asked or expected.

THE DECORATIONS.

When it comes to enterprise Jacksonville merchants are by no means lacking and many of them have shown their magnanimity in this respect this year in no uncertain manner.

The carnival committee made an urgent request of all the merchants to decorate their show windows and store fronts and all have made some effort in this direction, while many of them have truly handsome and elaborate displays.

One of the most unique displays both from an artistic and advertisement standpoint, is found at the A. F. Franks cigar store on West State street. The idea is not only clever in conception, but is worked out most beautifully in execution. A glance at the window shows the observer that the handiwork is that of a master hand. Everything in the window is of the corn variety. The scene depicted is that of a corn field. In the east window the corn is seen growing in the field, with a fence built of corn stalks. The ground is represented by corn meal colored black. West of the field is a miniature corn billiard table. The legs are of red popcorn, the frame work is adorned with kernels colored a deep red, the green baize is made out of colored corn meal; corn cobs represented the billiard balls and short green stalks of young growing corn form the cues; the whole is set on a carpet of red and yellow corn kernels, bordered with broom corn seed, while from the ceiling of the window hanging in graceful folds are strings of corn representing portiers with corn silk tassels. Suspended in the center of the window is a corn cigar of stained kernels, with a light red circle of kernels the end set off with a grayish rosette, the latter representing the ashes and the former the fire.

In the west window is a miniature bowling alley and a field of corn cut in and in shocks worked out with similar ingenuity. The windows must be seen, however, to be appreciated, as no description can begin to do them justice. They certainly speak well for the enterprise of Mr. Frank, who has had innumerable compliments upon the perfection with which he has worked out the details of his magnificent display.

The spacious show windows of Galbraith Bros., furniture and carpet house have been handsomely trimmed in keeping with the occasion and a most artistic effect has been wrought by a liberal use of the golden grain. Strings of corn hang from the ceiling caught in a bunch at the center and drooping in graceful folds to the sides. Various colored ribbons are intertwined and the drapery effect desired has been artistically secured. In the center of the west window is suspended a swing made out of red popcorn ears and seated in the swing is a doll. On each side of the swing in the background are two big letter G's and corn gates are represented below the letters. A mirror imbedded in the corn carpet with rich gilt frame is indicative of the decorator's taste and other articles of furniture give the scene a most complete and finished setting. The window is being much admired. In the east window is a handsome furniture display.

The east window of Andre & Andre is a beauty and has been worked out in perfect detail. The representation is a well scene, showing the old oaken bucket with a milk maid standing by just ready to draw from the well. The iron wheel and rope by means of which the bucket is lowered and the covered roof so seldom seen in actual use now are well made and have been the work of skilled hands. The background is made out of corn stalks and there is also a representation of a watermelon patch. In the west window is a rich display of draperies and furniture with a sign having the initials A. & A. and the word welcome wrought in corn kernels. The display is in keeping with the up-to-date reputation of this well known firm.

Seeburger & Bro. have made a liberal use of the yellow staple in the shape of a corn pyramid ornamented with a row of electric lights. Ears of corn are suspended from the ceiling of the window and corn stalks are placed in the corners of the window, while the store front is bedecked with stalks and corn rosettes. The display is well gotten up indeed.

At the Kuechler drug store Ed E. Dunsen, one of the clerks, conceived an idea which is well worked out in the shape of an old time water wheel. The burr is fed by water from the city hydrant inside and at the top is the grist wheel turned by the water power. There is a roadway leading to the mill made out of corn with wagons loaded with the grain going to mill. On the side of the grist mill shed is Kuechler's corn cure advertisement and the mill race is made realistic by the use of moss excelsior, colored green representing grass and pieces of rock. The window has been the subject of frequent comment and is one of the most unique on the square.

Frank's dry goods store is not behind any of the other merchants in artistic display. A corn pagoda, done in white and yellow, with a lavish use of corn rosettes serves to make a fine setting for the display of numerous handsome dress patterns.

Johnson, Hackett & Guthrie have a richly draped window representing a Turkish cory corner, with pipe water bowl, etc., resting on a tabourette. In front of the store in the day time is exhibited a special hot blast stove that burns anything and burns up everything, the special advantage of the make lying in the fact that it burns from top and sides to center.

Tindale, Brown & Co. have on exhibition some paper samples made by the S. D. Warren & Co. of the Cumberland paper mills at Kankakee, Ill., and made from the corn stalk after it has been subjected to a depithed process. Above the paper samples are a bunch of corn stalks tied with ribbons.

The Hatch drug store have an attractive display. Ears of corn and corn rosettes predominate and the front of the store is especially well decorated. The show windows are arranged with the yellow color scheme, well carried out and the whole effect is very pleasing.

Garland & Co. are in line with the rest and their windows are made to represent the richness of the harvest field. Corn stalks in abundance are on display, both around the store front and over the windows and sheaves of wheat are scattered among the harvested stalks, the whole being set off with innumerable corn rosettes. The display shows a great deal of taste.

Tomlinson & Babb have sought the drapery effect in their windows and strings of the yellow grain are gracefully festooned in both windows, while in the west window a Hawes hat design is well worked out by the use of the kernels. They also have made use of the corn rosette and their windows have a neat and attractive appearance.

The Central Telephone company have a clever display combining the advertising idea with ears of corn set on a board spelling the word telephone, on the top of which are glass screws, from which run wires back to the building. A telephone set in the front of the entrance to the building completes the display.

The Western Union and Postal Telegraph companies evidence the corn carnival, the former by the liberal use of stalks and bunting, the latter by a sign spelling the words Postal Telegraph company in corn kernels with a ticker on the sign calling attention to it.

The Davis bakery and J. F. Claus have their store fronts well covered with corn stalks, while the rosette has been used liberally and with telling effect. The cereal display in the Davis show windows is a good advertisement for his bakery goods, while the wares of the Claus store are attractively shown in the midst of sheafs of wheat oats with sunflowers to give a touch of color.

Elnie & Bro., both on East and West State streets, show their progressive spirit in their decorations. Their show windows are filled with the golden grain and candy telephone boxes and other novelties are tastefully displayed. Corn rosettes and stalks are also used lavishly.

The National Tea company have an abundance of the golden article in their show window and their premium chinaware is set in a bed of grain, with the east side of their oblong window lined with ears of corn, while the front has the usual display of stalks.

The window of J. Herman is brilliantly illumined every evening and his artistic line of millinery is exhibited on pedestals decorated with corn, while strings of corn form the drapery for the display. The window is indeed a very attractive one.

The Big Store, the Alexander Mercantile company are always on hand with something novel and in front of their establishment is an imitation country store, with characteristic signs, etc., tacked on the sides. Articles of an inexpensive variety are on sale by means of a drawing from a box of envelopes. Every envelope contains a prize and the purchaser of an envelope never goes away empty handed and has the opportunity of trying his luck. The novelty of the plan is very clever indeed. Corn stalks adorn the front of the store and the firm enjoys the distinction of having the only booth on the square.

Schram, the jeweler, has filled his window a foot deep with shelled corn and his breast pins, etc., on black velvet settings show off well on such a background and the effect desired is well achieved.

Ledford and the Obermeyer drug store have their store front covered with the usual display of stalks and in the Ledford window is a unique sign, having the words school books in red and yellow kernels.

The T. H. Curtis grocery on East State street have evolved a very pretty scheme. In their west window is an imitation corn mill, from which is represented piles of cornmeal, hominy, flaked hominy, etc., as having

Large Barn and House
Large Barn and House, 1/2 mile from Jacksonville, Ill. For sale. Call on J. H. Campbell, R. R. No. 1, city.

Springfield, Aug. 25. At 1:17 this afternoon the fire department was called to the large hotel 1/2 mile south of the city. The message that came over the wire was: "Send the whole department. The barns are afire and the house may go."

Fire Marshal Miller immediately ordered out engine No. 3 from the Fourth street station and the two chemical and hose carts from engine-houses No. 4 and 7, in the south and west ends.

The fire was first discovered about noon when it had gained a good headway in one of the large barns, but it rapidly spread to the adjoining buildings. The fire raged fiercely and the dwelling house was only saved by the fact that the wind set away from it. The large barn, which stands southwest of the dwelling house, several sheds and the silo, were totally destroyed. The fire department made the trip in good time and soon had several streams playing on the burning buildings, the water being drawn from the pond near the house. At 2 o'clock the fire was under control. The loss cannot be accurately ascertained at this time, but it will run high in the thousands, partly covered by insurance. The buildings were well filled with hay, grain and other feed, and this loss will be heavy, as the feed was all destroyed by fire or water. At this time it is impossible to get the accurate estimate of either the loss or the insurance. The origin of the fire is unknown.

WITH OLD FRIENDS.
"Was once my happy lot to dine
With kind friend, Mr. Hixson;
The manna was both rich and fine
From cakes and pies to fresh spring lamb.
I met the village parson there,
An interesting man,
With necktie white and powdered hair;
The peer of all his clan.
I find him versed in modern lore;
Telepathy his theme.
In eloquence he'd grandly soar
Like some grand fairy dream.
And there was the grand old dame,
Mothers in Israel,
Whose golden words like legends flame,
Of sacred truths did tell.
We talk, we play, we sing, we read—
The moments seem to fly.
Time quickly passed—too sweet to last;
We bid you all good bye.

NOT OVER-WISE.
There is an old allegorical picture of a girl seated at a grassy spot, but in the act of heedlessly trading on a snake. This is paralleled by the man who spends a large sum of money building a cyclone cellar, but neglects to provide his family with a bottle of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy as a safeguard against bowel complaints, whose victims outnumber those of the cyclone a hundred to one. This remedy is everywhere recognized as the most prompt and reliable medicine in use for these diseases. For sale by all druggists.

THE CORN CARNIVAL

run out from the mill through paper chutes. In the east window is a miniature log cabin, dimly lighted made from corn cobs, a well sweep stands near the cabin and the whole is enclosed with a corn cob stake and rider rail fence. The idea has been very neatly worked out and the windows are very well done indeed.

Miss Emma Stevenson has arranged the large show window of her millinery store in an attractive manner. A chandelier made from intertwining strings of corn has been well designed and the drapery effect has been well carried out with a fine display of fall millinery.

Herman Weber conceived the corn crib idea and his window bears testimony to the fact that the golden staple can be used for decorative purposes when in competent hands.

Schmalz & Sons have depicted the harvest field in their windows and have used an abundance of stalks in their decorations with splendid effect.

Thomas Mason has grouped around the proverbial owl a number of corn rosettes covered with watch faces, which added to an attractive display of jewelry, makes a very pretty window.

VanAnglen, the shoe man, has a gorgeous yellow and gold window made beautiful by the use of an abundant supply of corn and yellow ribbons. The window is well lighted and shows off well in the evening.

Vickery & Merrigan have well sustained their reputation in the decorative line and have erected a corn awning which extends over the sidewalk and is thatched with corn stalks, while the supports are wrapped with the same. Red is the dominant color in the show window and the words Vickery & Merrigan in large letters made from the yellow grain make a striking appearance against such a background. Confectionery novelties add to the adornment of the window and the result is all that could be wished.

James Groves evidently believes in sticking to one idea and he has certainly been successful, as he has the largest display of corn stalks anywhere to be seen. His store front is completely covered with them and they evidence the fact in an unmistakable manner that the corn carnival is here.—More anon.

CHICAGO CATTLE MARKET.

Oliver S. Green, with Shannon Bros. & Co., Union Stock Yards, Chicago, for Monday, Aug. 24, says:
Cattle—Receipts, 22,000, a smaller run than had been looked for. The market was active and 10½c higher. The top was $5.50 for seventeen 1,550-pound steers. The sales from $5.50 to $5.60 were numerous and some $5.65 to $5.80. Demand strong for good butcher stuff at an advance of 10½c. Stockers and feeders stronger.
Hogs—Receipts, 25,000. Market active and 10½c higher. Top $6.20 for choice light weights. Selected heavy and medium weights $5.80 to $6.
Sheep—Receipts, 40,000. Choice steady; others 10½c lower.

FROM MR. GREEN.

O. S. Green, in a letter to the Journal, says: "I am pleased to say that I have recovered from my late sickness and able to attend to business here again. The prospects for strong to higher prices for fat cattle this fall is good. Last Monday, with the largest receipts of cattle—nearly 37,000—ever received here, the fat ones sold only a shade lower. Wednesday, on a run of 18,000, prices advanced 10½c and were stronger again yesterday or 20½c higher than Monday. The western cattle are nearly all in feeder and canner flesh and will be but little in the way of corn fed cattle."

YOUNG MAN INJURED

Samuel Dunavan Struck by Unknown Assaultant—Had Row in Park.

While the crowd was standing in front of the Bowman & Dodge electric palace about 5 o'clock yesterday evening, several threatening words were passed by three or four standing in the crowd and when the fracas was over a man by the name of Samuel Dunavan, of Little Indian, was lying on the pavement in an unconscious condition and bleeding from his right ear. It was all done so quickly that no eye witnesses to the affair could be found. Policeman Jackson arrested a young man by the name of Keithler, who hails from Little Indian and who was suspected of knowing who struck the blow that disabled Dunavan. He would say nothing, however, when taken to the police station and on searching him, a billiard ball was the only thing found on his person. The blow received by Dunavan was undoubtedly inflicted with some instrument and looks very much as if a pair of brass knuckles had been used. It seems that a number of young men from the Little Indian neighborhood were standing together, when Dunavan came up and some words were passed between Dunavan and one of the young men, when Dunavan struck at him and another one of the party landed on Dunavan. Dr. Correll was called and the ambulance sent for when the patient was taken to Passavant hospital. He regained consciousness after a short time and he is not as badly hurt as was first thought.
